

organize the voice of his assailant?" Mrs. Williams was asked.

"He replied in an indignant negative. Did Not Know Voice."

"If it had been any one whom we knew we would have recognized the voice at once? If it had been my husband, as they have tried to insinuate, I would not have recognized it. My husband, as has now been proven, was here at Long Green and not in Chicago on a business trip. The names of other men-friends of mine and of my husband have been dragged into this, and very unjustly."

"Surely there was nothing unusual in being on the boardwalk with Mr. Roberts at that early hour of the evening. Had it not been my husband and Mr. Roberts instead I would have thought nothing of it. Neither would Mr. Roberts."

"The two families have been friends for years. Our children are being brought up together. Mr. Roberts was, and still is, a dear friend of mine. The incident of the chaperone has on my part been greatly exaggerated. The detective said: 'Why, if they had taken that, I would believe you had been robbed.' But a man who was intent on robbing a woman and her child had a drawn pistol in his hand, could not afford to pay any attention to me when Mr. Roberts, who is a very large man, advanced to attack him."

Never Met Woodruff.

Mrs. Williams was asked regarding a statement she was alleged to have given to Chief of Police Woodruff, of Atlantic City, in which she reported to have said that her husband had not been in Europe at all, but had been in a seafaring life.

"I never said anything of the kind," she declared. "How could I have said any such thing when I saw my husband aboard the steamer for Europe? Of course he went abroad. Mr. Woodruff has been reported as saying a great many things and has attributed some statements to me. To this I say I have never even seen Mr. Woodruff, and any interview with me that has given out would be a fabrication of his own imagination."

"There is nothing about the whole affair to be concealed. An attempt was made to hold up Mr. Roberts and in resisting the robber he was shot. That is all there is to it. Seeking to find another motive, which some newspapers have done, is unfair and cruel to a woman who has no redress."

POLICE TO DROP CASE IF ROBERTS LIVES, IS THEORY.

(Special to The Evening World.)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 31.—

Through a source of information pretty close to police headquarters, a story comes out this afternoon that the Atlantic City police know the name of the man who shot Charles G. Roberts in a roller chair on the boardwalk last Wednesday night. The story states that the man is under surveillance, but that the interests seeking to keep the story quiet will be strong enough to save him from arrest unless Roberts dies.

Should Roberts recover it is claimed that the police will drop the case. The plan is to stick to the theory that the man is under surveillance. There is no doubt that the Atlantic City Police Department is subject to influence, as was proved by the fact that the shooting of Roberts was concealed for eighteen hours.

Followed the Couple.

The Atlantic City detectives are said to positively know that the man who shot Roberts followed him and Mrs. W. S. G. Williams from the Brighton and kept them in sight up to the moment of the shooting. They are also said to have under cover a witness who heard Mrs. Williams say to the first policeman who arrived after the shooting:

"For God's sake keep it quiet. This is a prominent Baltimore man."

It is generally believed here that Williams' last establishing his presence in Baltimore at the time of the shooting is a ruse. The man who fired the shot, however, is said to be known to Williams, perhaps better known to Williams than to Mrs. Williams or Roberts.

Chief of Police Woodruff, of Atlantic City, charges that the Baltimore police are endeavoring to send a resident of that city and have refused to cooperate with a detective he sent there on Thursday to trace the movements of W. S. G. Williams, whose wife was with Roberts when he was shot.

Contradictory reports are about concerning the condition of Roberts, but there is good reason for the belief that he is in a very bad way. Detectives assert that septic poisoning has set in and they are clamoring for an opportunity to secure an anti-mortem statement, but the hospital authorities will not allow a policeman to approach his bedside. Thus far he has been seen only by his brother and his wife.

Chief Woodruff Complains.

"Unless there is something doing in Baltimore to-day," Chief Woodruff said to an Evening World reporter, "I am going to find out why the police there are trying to cover somebody up. My reports that they have absolutely refused to assist him in any way."

"I have wired him to clean up what"
